(1) The internet (or the net) is the name for the system that links computers all over the world. To use the Net all you need is a PC, a phone, a modem to connect the PC to the telephone line, and a subscription to your local server. As soon as you are connected, you can send and receive messages by e-mail, make new friends and get information on every subject you can imagine from many sites on the World Wide Web (or the Web), the name for the electronic pages of the Internet.

(2) At the moment there are over 20 million electronic pages of text and pictures. Try surfing the net: it is like using an encyclopaedia index, but it's much more fun. First of all, look up the subject that interests you. You will have to look at all the list of all the helpful Web sites. You can also book a plane ticket or even a room in a hotel. Many services are provided by the net when you are at home. Just click on the link with your mouse and in a few seconds you will be connected to the site you have chosen.

(3) In few years' time, millions of people will be linked to the Internet. We will be able, for example, to watch any television programme or video whenever we like, and listen to all the songs that have ever been recorded.
