

1-Lisa Wilde, 37, became so frustrated at the rising cost of petrol that she now leaves her Land Rover in the garage and instead uses her trusty horse and cart for everything from the school run to shopping trips. Lisa and partner Dean Wiles, 38, say the change has already saved the family hundreds of pounds and has been a huge hit with the neighbours.

2-Every day sees the couple and their three children complete a seven-mile round trip to school - saving them a small fortune. Lisa said: "The price of fuel these days is extortionate - it wasn't that long ago I could put £20 in the Land Rover and it would fill it up to a quarter of a tank, but now it won't even stop my fuel warning light. "One day we just decided that we couldn't afford it and we haven't looked back since. The horses need feeding and exercising anyway so it just makes sense." In the current economic climate it's also very expensive keeping horses - but now they are definitely earning their keep."

3-The family - who make and repair horse boxes for a living - have been using the old-fashioned form of transport on and off for the past six months. They head three miles north to drop Benjamin, nine, and Oliver, six, at the local primary school in Coggeshall before dropping off daughter Eleanor, 15, at her secondary school half-a-mile down the road. The round trip takes around 40 minutes - twice as long as the equivalent car journey in rush hour - but Lisa says it saves her time as she doesn't have to find an hour in her day to exercise the horses separately.

4-She also stops off to get groceries and pick up supplies and the change of lifestyle has made the family popular amongst the locals. Lisa added: "Whenever we are out and about in the carriage it causes quite a stir but it seems to put a smile on people's faces and definitely beats the usual rat race in a car.

5-"The schoolchildren love it when we stop outside with the horses so we never have a problem finding a parking space. It's also a great way of making friends instantly around the village. The only problem we've had so far is that Eleanor cringes every time we pull up outside her school as everyone is staring - but she still never turns down a lift."

6-Proud Benjamin added: "I love riding in the carriage every day as people at school always come up to me and say 'wow Ben - was that really you? My mates love getting to stroke the horses and are always asking me for lifts home. I look forward to it every day."
